World Antimicrobial Awareness Week: webinars and resources

Antimicrobial resistance (AMR) is a growing global threat. It makes infections harder or sometimes impossible to treat, prolonging illness and increasing the risk of harm. In the UK, AMR is associated with twice as many deaths per year as breast cancer. Healthcare professionals play a critical role in tackling AMR.

This World AMR Awareness Week (18-24 November), join webinars and explore resources to find out about best practice and actions we can take to improve patient care and preserve antimicrobials for future generations.

New Report Highlights the Case for the Real Living Wage in Primary Care

To mark National Living Wage Week (9-13 November), a new report, The Case for the Living Wage in Primary Care, has been published by Dr Andrea Werner of Middlesex University.

The report explores the benefits of adopting the Real Living Wage within primary care settings, highlighting its potential impact on workforce recruitment, retention, staff wellbeing and organisational reputation. As general practice continues to face workforce challenges, the report provides valuable insight into how fair pay can contribute to building a sustainable and motivated workforce.

For practices and primary care employers interested in learning more, a range of resources are available through the Living Wage Foundation, including information on the benefits of accreditation, practical guidance on managing pay differentials, and examples of accredited primary care employers across London.

Applications Open for Nurse-Led Innovation Projects

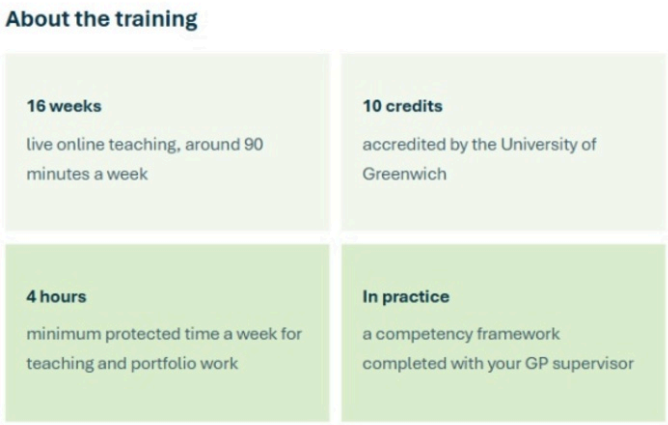

Do you have an idea that could improve health and wellbeing in your community?

The Queen's Institute of Community Nursing is pleased to offer two funded innovation opportunities for community, primary care and social care nurses, thanks to the support of the National Garden Scheme and the Burdett Trust for Nursing.

From projects that harness the benefits of gardens and gardening to innovative approaches that address wider health and wellbeing challenges, these funding opportunities are designed to help nurses turn great ideas into reality. Full application guidance can be found on our website.

- Applications are now open for the NGS Elsie Wagg (Innovation) Scholarship 2027, which seeks to promote health and wellbeing through gardens and gardening. The scholarship will be awarded to five nurses who will lead a project that promotes the health benefits of gardening and garden visiting among a group of people These projects are kindly funded by the National Garden Scheme to support practical examples of how gardens can promote physical, mental and emotional health. The application deadline is Sunday 22nd November 2026. Apply here

- We are looking for two innovative nurse-led projects in community settings, primary care or social care that improve health and wellbeing outcomes for patients, carers and their families, reduce health inequalities, or improve patient care and safety. These projects are kindly funded by the Burdett Trust for Nursing. The projects should aim to improve physical, mental or emotional health and wellbeing, or a combination of all of these. We welcome project proposals that, in addition, contribute to the wider environmental agenda and sustainability within health services. The closing date for applications is Sunday 22nd November 2026. Apply here

Applications are now open for the national General Practice Assistant training programme, delivered by Primary Care Workforce Academy (PCWA) on behalf of NHS England.

Apply here

Who can apply? You must be employed in a GPA role, or a joint role that includes GPA duties, in a GP practice in England.

You'll also need:

• the support of your practice manager, and a GP who has agreed to be your supervisor

• ideally, the Care Certificate or Maths and English at GCSE grade C/4 (or equivalent functional skills). If you don't have these, please still apply and the team will talk it through with you

What happens after you apply?

1 Submit your application

Complete the short online form.

2 Your application is reviewed

Team checks your eligibility and contacts your named GP supervisor to confirm their support.

3 You receive confirmation

You will receive a confirmation that your application has been accepted.

4 You're allocated to a cohort Team will tell you which cohort you're in, your start date and your session links, so you and your practice can plan ahead.

For practices: if you don't yet have a GPA, this could be a chance to develop someone from your existing team into the role. We're happy to talk it through, just get in touch. You can also read our information for employers.

FREE introductory webinar : Build your confidence supporting trans patients SHARED ON BEHALF OF CENTRAL TH

This session aims to increase confidence in recognising learning disability, distinguishing it from other neurodevelopmental and mental health conditions, and understanding when specialist learning disability involvement is appropriate.

This training aims to:

- Improve awareness and understanding of learning disabilities.
- Increase knowledge of the role of the Hillingdon Learning Disability Team.
- Provide clarity on the remit of the specialist learning disability service.
- Explain referral criteria and appropriate referral pathways.
- Improve the quality and appropriateness of referrals received.
- Enhance professionals' understanding of the definition of a learning disability.
- Increase awareness of the support available through the Hillingdon Learning Disability Team.

Participants will gain knowledge and skills in:

- Understanding the definition and characteristics of a learning disability.
- Recognising the health and social care needs of people with learning disabilities.
- Making reasonable adjustments to improve access to services.
- Using effective communication strategies when supporting people with learning disabilities.
- Delivering person-centred care and promoting independence.
- Working collaboratively with families, carers and other professionals.
- Identifying when a referral to specialist learning disability services is appropriate.
- Understanding available support pathways and community resources.
- Promoting equality, inclusion, and positive outcomes for people with learning disabilities.

- Peer Support and Action Learning Training Programme: Create the right environment for people to think at their best!

  Making the best use of everyone's thinking is of paramount importance for us to solve the many issues we face in our everyday work. Action Learning Sets are the ideal environment to share our experience and learn from the wisdom and insights of our colleagues. Facilitated well, these sessions also provide a safe and confidential space for participants to receive support and encouragement from their colleagues and peers.

  NEW – you can find out more about the course from Dr Tim Williams who explains more here.

  The programme includes:

  A full-day session, facilitated via Zoom, focussing on how to create the right environment for people to think at their best and provides a simple framework for participants to use straight away to facilitate their peer groups.

  After practicing their learning for the next two months following the first session, attendees will join the second half-day follow-up session, which is used to build on their experience and consolidate their learning.

  After practicing their learning for the next two months following the first session, attendees will join the second half-day follow-up session, which is used to build on their experience and consolidate their learning.

  Quotes from previous attendees:

  "The ALS training I have completed today has opened my eyes to how positive and empowering group work can be when the correct facilitation is put into place - such as having a non-judgement environment, adequate time to work and a system whereby everyone has chance to contribute."

  "Engaging, thought provoking and life changing".

  "Has made me more determined to listen better and ask other people what they think! for me but Tim made me feel at ease and when I feel as ease I can contribute more. I loved the day and am looking forward to the next session. Many, many thanks"

Who can attend: Each borough has a limited number of places. We are seeking a range of people to attend who feel there is an opportunity to improve peer support and positive spaces for colleagues to share problems, think, and get input and support. This includes clinical and non-clinical colleagues across general practice including PCNs. Attendees signing up for this training must have the opportunity to put it into practice between the training dates.
Please note that this training is online, therefore we would recommend that you arrange to work in a quiet space where you will not get distracted by work. If you cannot work from home, or a meeting room or other suitable space for the full day training, please indicate that in the booking.

- Primary care cybersecurity webinars NEW

NHS England has teamed up with the City of London Police's Cyber Griffin team to deliver a set of webinars for primary care organisations. The aims are to share real-world intelligence on current cyber threats; offer simple, effective steps to protect organisations; help colleagues spot and respond to suspicious activity before it becomes a breach; and discuss how to address cyber actions on the Data Security and Protection Toolkit (DSPT). There is one session remaining for 2026: Cyber Baseline Part B: 24 November 1-2.15pm. For further information, contact the Joint Cyber Unit: england.jointcyberunit@nhs.net.

- Principles of inclusive clinical leadership practice

25 November, 10.30am to midday

Explore how workforce inequalities affect staff experience, wellbeing, belonging and patient care, through evidence, case-based learning and practical reflection. This session is open to anyone working in healthcare education and training roles with an interest in clinical leadership.

A successful primary care partnership starts with making people feel part of the team. Drawing on his experience as a Practice Manager, Gary Hughes reflects on why that sense of belonging matters for everyone working in a practice—from permanent staff to locums and external partners. As general practice works with an increasingly diverse range of professionals, building these relationships can benefit both the team and the patients they care for. In this episode of Leadership in Practice, Gary speaks with Mohammed Rashad, Senior Clinical Pharmacist and Director of The Medicines Management Team, about how primary care partners can work successfully together. Bringing experience in pharmacy services, quality and workforce development across practices and PCNs, Mohammed joins Gary to explore a challenge familiar to practice leaders: making partnership working a positive experience for everyone involved.

- Shine a light on co-production January 2027 - 26 January 2027 10:30am – 12:00pm

The Experience and Partnerships Team at NHS England would like to thank you for signing up for the Shine a Light on Co-production Event. This event is all about showing what can be achieved when people with lived experience and people who work for the NHS (learnt experience) partner together. At each event, they share their stories of collaboration, their top tips, what went well, the challenges they faced, and how their cooperation made a difference and led to improvements. - book here

Free RCGP London Webinars | Supporting patients experiencing gambling harms

· Thursday 26 November | 12:30 – 13:45 | Online | book here

Patients in London are experiencing gambling harms at nearly double the national average (5.6% compared with 2.9% nationally). Primary care teams are in a unique position to identify gambling harms early and help patients access the support they need.

Join us for this FREE RCGP webinar, where Dr Emma Ryan, RCGP Clinical Champion for Gambling Harms, will provide practical guidance on identifying, assessing and supporting patients experiencing gambling harms.
What you'll learn:
The NICE guideline on gambling-related harms (January 2025).
How to identify gambling harms in primary care.
Local referral pathways and support services across London.
Practical tools and resources to support conversations with patients.
By attending one of these live webinars, your GP practice will receive the RCGP Gambling Harms Practice Resource Pack and an RCGP Gambling Harms Accredited Practice Certificate, recognising your practice's commitment to improving the identification and support of patients experiencing gambling harms.
Who should attend?
GPs, practice nurses, clinical pharmacists, social prescribers, health and wellbeing coaches, care coordinators and practice managers.

- NWL Primary Care Training: Addressing Systemic Discrimination

RM Partners, in collaboration with the Health Innovation Network South London and brap, is hosting free half-day development sessions to support GP practices and PCNs in reducing health inequalities across the cancer pathway. The interactive training explores how poverty and racism impact cancer outcomes and provides practical guidance on steps primary care professionals can take in their roles.

- What is chorea in Huntington's disease webinar, and what can we do about it?

  28 January 2027 1pm

  Chorea is the most obvious change that people with Huntington's disease display, but what exactly is it, what impact does it have, and how can we best support people who are experiencing it?

  We're welcoming GPs and other healthcare professionals to this free lunchtime webinar on this important topic. There will be the opportunity for questions. This webinar follows on from the Treating movement disorders in people living with Huntington's disease professional guideline, launched by the Huntington's Disease Association in May 2026. This guideline has been developed to provide GPs and other healthcare professionals with a clear and accessible starting point, helping to build confidence and support further learning. It has been endorsed by the European Huntington's Disease Network (EHDN).

  Our speaker is Professor Anne Rosser. Anne is Professor of Clinical Neuroscience, Division of Psychological Medicine and Clinical Neurosciences, Cardiff University. Anne is also the author of the Huntington's Disease Association's guideline 'Treating movement disorders in people living with Huntington's disease.
